ABOUT OMAN HEALTHCARE

The Oman healthcare sector has witnessed commendable growth over the last few decades. Today, Oman is building new medical cities and hospitals with nearly 70 quality hospitals existing, having over 6, 400 beds, offering a range of specialized and general patient care services across the country. The new hospitals, medical centers, and clinics in the pipeline are expected to play a major role in achieving Oman's Health Vision 2050, a long-term strategy issued in 2014 that aims to support the government's goal of providing an equitable and responsive healthcare system, which in turn will create a productive population.

The Omani healthcare market offers solid prospects.

- 1- MOH has expressed interest in healthcare information management to establish interconnectivity among Oman's hospitals and regional clinics.
- 2- The Omani Government currently spends an estimated $300 million a year on medicines, with more than 93% of medical supplies, including laboratory, surgical equipment and pharmaceuticals, needing to be imported from abroad.
- 3- The MOH has also repeatedly stressed the need to develop innovative health care financing and insurance solutions. Therefore the insurance market in Oman will likely grow...
- 4- MoH was planning to introduce a national certification for patient safety and quality control in health care facilities

ABOUT OMAN

When organising any conference, seminar or exhibition, perhaps the greatest concern is the presence of accompanying activities. What distinguishes Oman in general, and Muscat in particular, is the easy access to major tourist attractions and the abundance of variety to meet all interests.

For nature lovers, there are white sandy beaches that extend as far as the eye can see, often modulating into shimmering golden sand dunes surrounding refreshing oases that are a welcome surprise to the wandering traveller.

For lovers of high terrain, they will surely be captivated by the mountainous regions that conceal countless wadis and lagoons that constitute a single and independent ecosystems by themselves. This natural diversity provides a variety of adventures and options available to tourists, from desert activities to water sports and the other natural activities.

Oman is the ultimate destination for cultural tourism. This is where you will find hundreds of castles, forts and museums dating back to various historic epochs.

In general, Omani people are characterized by a broad smile and the authentic Arabic generosity that is in the Omani blood. This is evident in the Omani hospitality widespread throughout the country, whether be it the aromatic Omani coffee offered to visitors or the laden palm trees that welcome anyone who wishes to taste their fruit. www.omantourism.gov.om
